Flight Deadline

The deadline for the Summer issue of FLIGHT will be June 3, 1996. Submit your articles of interest to the editor prior to that date. I encourage readers to send in letters to the editor. Remember, this is your newsletter!

From the Editor

Hopefully, by the time you read this issue of Flight, we will have had our last taste of winter. Most of us will be anxiously awaiting warmer temperatures and some outdoor shooting. Many of our members will be tuning new equipment for that first field round or a 3-D tournament. Some will be practicing their turkey calling techniques for the spring gobbler season. And others may be planning a spring bear hunt to relieve their cabin fever. Whatever form of archery therapy you use, I hope you take the time to enjoy it.

I've just returned from the State Indoor Tournament with a list of shooters, scores, and pictures to arrange and get ready to print in the Flight. As this issue is being worked on, I would like to remind all host clubs of State Tournaments that it is their responsibility to furnish the Flight editor with accurate and legible listings of shooters, scores, and placement of winners. Please, as a host club, make this one of your priorities. It is important to the participating individuals and to the other VBA members who enjoy reading the results. Thanks, and

Good Shooting,

ATTENTION!!!

The correct dates for the NFAA Nationals are July 29 – August 2.

*The dates listed on the VBA Shoot Card
 are incorrect.*

From the Corresponding Secretary

In the past several months, I have received numerous telephone calls from members and club secretaries about the post card reminder from NFAA of member's dues expiring on a certain date. This is a courtesy reminder that NFAA started in mid 1995 because NFAA dues expire at different times during the year for all NFAA members. In most cases, if you have paid your NFAA dues to your club secretary and they have mailed them to me, this notice has simply crossed in the mail, so please disregard it.

Bowhunter Safety Course Offered

Every serious bowhunter needs this course! Learn the "how-tos" of ethics and hunter responsibility, safety, equipment set-up, game anatomy, shot placement, reading signs, trailing, field dressing, tree stand installation and more.

Attendance at both sessions entitles you to bowhunter certification which is required for out-of-state hunts.

March 23 & 24 • 1 – 6 p.m. • $7.50 per person

VBA to Postpone Second Annual Awards Banquet

The VBA has announced that its Second Annual Awards Banquet will be postponed until March 1997.

The banquet was set for Saturday, March 30, 1996 at the Mount Vernon Best Western Motel in Charlottesville.

According to Dave Burpee, banquet chairman, the primary reason for cancellation was a lack of support by the VBA membership.

"Putting on a banquet requires financial commitments to a caterer and hotel," Burpee said. "Unfortunately, when it was time to sign the contract, there were fewer than twenty VBA members who had said they would attend. Also, we had not received a commitment from our guest speaker. We simply couldn't afford the financial risk, and we don't want to put on a second rate event."

Bob Seltzer, VBA Hunting Vice President, said the trophies for the VBA members who harvest the largest buck by weight, the largest doe by weight and the largest rack as measured by the Virginia system would still be awarded - most likely at a VBA meeting.

The banquet next year will be scheduled for late March and will feature presentation of the 1996-97 hunting season awards as well as recognition of this year's winners. In addition to the awards, the banquet will feature a display of animals, door prizes, raffle prizes and a prominent guest speaker.

Put the event on your calendar now and plan to commit early!

Scenes from the 1996 VBA State Indoor

Hunting Bait-Shy Bears

A large, black object appeared in my peripheral vision. Turning my head very slowly, I focused on a large bear cautiously walking the perimeter of the baited area.

The sow stopped three times to look at a nearby vacant permanent tree stand and sniff the air in an effort to detect human presence. My excitement grew as it looked like my tactic - seldom used by bear hunters - would be successful.

My tactics for hunting over bear bait would change on this pilgrimage to Maine, beginning with my stand. Calling my guide and outfitter Jack Pierce of North Ridge Bayed Bear Outfitters, I informed him that I would be bringing my portable tree stand. He agreed that it sounded like a good idea.

The exciting sport of black bear hunting has, in recent years, shown tremendous growth in Maine. Nearly all bear outfitters use permanent tree stands, the result being that bears become conditioned to look directly at the stands before coming in to baits. By setting up a portable stand in a new position, many times a hunter can outfox a wary black bear.

Many times, the ability to change tactics is crucial to a successful hunt.

The aforementioned bear walked directly behind my tree stand only twenty yards away, sat down on her haunches and continued to sniff the air. Unfortunately, in the distance I could hear a helicopter approaching fast. With one tremendous bolt she was gone. I wouldn't see the bear again until the following day.

However, my tree stand tactic had proven to be a success.

The following day, fifteen minutes before it would be too dark to shoot an arrow, the big black bear suddenly appeared in the thickets directly behind the bait. Never hesitating, she looked up at the old permanent stand and, satisfied that all was well, turned broadside for a perfect lung shot.

Once again, hanging my portable stand fifteen yards from the wooden ladder stand the outfitter hand-built - and directly in front of a pine tree to break up my outline - proved to be a technique that works on conditioned bears. But not any portable stand will do. An inherent problem with many climbing stands is the noise made when setting them up. Traditional bowhunter and expert bear hunter Tom Frye notes, "Many bears are never very far from the bait site, so it's imperative that a hunter be as quiet as possible upon entering and leaving a hunting area." For this reason, I use a hanging stand and tie-on tree steps, as the screw-in style is illegal in Maine. The hanging stand affords the hunter a quiet entrance and exit.

All but two of the five bowhunters in the camp that week switched to rifles because bears were moving off before getting near the bait. Aside from the tree stand factor, patience is a must when bear hunting over bait. A few hunters in camp tried in vain to convince me that I would be unsuccessful if I continued with my bow. However, bowhunting is the ultimate challenge for a bear hunter and settling for anything else would be sacrilege for me. Patience also applies to time per day spent in a tree stand. Pierce recommends that his clients arrive at their stands earlier in the afternoon than most outfitters do. This is a key tactic, as Pierce relates. "I've had quite a few bears taken around one or two o'clock, rather than the typical three or four o'clock that most outfitters suggest." This tactic, while time-consuming, has proven effective for me on occasions when bears seemed to be hitting baits early in the morning or at night. If you don't see a bear for several days, try a trail timing device. In my case, many times the bait was hit a little after one o'clock, according to the trail timing device I used. One very simple tactic for harvesting a wary black bear is to stay in your tree stand until dark. Most of the bears that I have taken - including the 250 pound sow on this trip - were shot just before dark. However, many bear hunters are not willing to risk running into a bear on the way out of the hunting area in the dark. Take it from veteran guide Pierce - "Hunters who stay on stand longer naturally increase their chances substantially."

Probably the least known or practiced bear-hunting tactic is calling. Calling can either be very productive and exciting or boring and frustrating. Calling in a bear isn't unlike calling any other predator. First the hunter must be in an area bears frequent. In Maine, this will be a baiting area with the caller set up in a location with excellent visibility to ensure that a bear cannot sneak in undetected. Frye again describes bears' keen senses. "Although a bear has only average sight, its sense of smell more than makes up for mediocre eyesight. And as in any big game hunt, always monitor wind direction and keep the wind into one's face when calling," he says. As in most predator calling, the greatest results are in early mornings - not a popular tree stand time - and afternoons. Calls can be as simple as a rabbit-in-distress sound, made by kissing the back of a hand, or pursing the lips. However, most use a hand-held reed call.

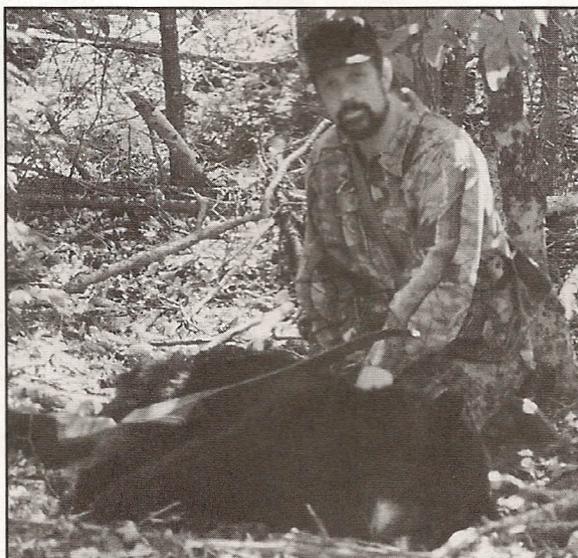

Typically, sows and young boars will come in to a distress call very quickly, with an old boar arriving much slower. But note: if a bear is called in and fooled once and gets away, the hunter may never get a second chance. Bears are smart. If you are unlucky enough to have a bear in the area that has been fooled once, you'll know it. The bear will ignore your call or run in the opposite direction.

The ultimate lesson to be learned is never to hesitate trying different tactics. You just might be the only one in camp who returns with a used bear tag!

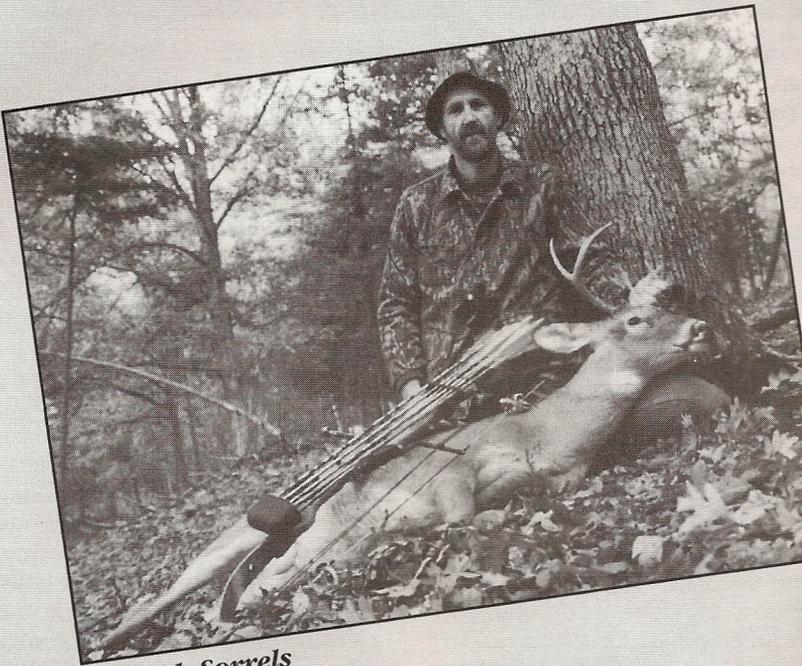

— Greg Hise

New River's Annual Benefit Shoot Racks Up Another Success!

Fellow Archers and Bowhunters,

This past summer, on July 29 and 30, the New River Bowhunters held its Third Annual Children's Miracle Network 3-D Bowshoot to benefit sick children. In the last two years our shoot has grown in size - not as much as we would like - but by a significant amount. In two days, 473 archers shot 574 rounds. Participants came from all over, including six other states. Some archers from Georgia made their pilgrimage here for the second time. We feel that this speaks very well of our event. Many archers promised to return again next year. Thanks to all the many VBA members who came for their support and participation. We hope to see even more of you this year.

Many other activities were scheduled in addition to the shoot itself. The Ohio Whitetail Spectacular displayed twenty of the largest whitetail heads many of us had ever seen. The exhibit proved very popular and attracted many non-archers to the event. We also hosted more than twenty dealer displays which drew much interest - many people left wanting to know more about archery.

On hand for the adults were representatives from Skoal and Levi Garrett, who handed out free samples plus Cooler Rules and bumper stickers. Both have said they will return this year.

When all was said and done, the club was able to donate $4,000 to the Children's Miracle Network through our local Wal-mart, which, in turn, presented us with a plaque of appreciation for our help.

Once again, we thank all of you for your support and hope to see you all again this year on the last weekend in July. For some stiff competition that benefits a worthy cause, come on over and give us a try!

— Tony Hall, Secretary
New River Bowhunters Club
Galax, Virginia

300 Field Round,
15 targets, 60 arrows.

All Flights pay the same!!!
Everyone has a chance to WIN!
The more shooter registered, the more FLIGHTS will be available.

This official NFAA round is a very enjoyable round. The 80 and 70 are NOT shot and the round takes 2.5 hours to shoot.

The idea of this Mini-Tour evolved at the September '95 VBA meeting by Bobby Utt and Lloyd Overfelt of New River; C. D. Miller, director of Wythe, and member of Triangle; Jim Overfelt, director of Triangle; and John VanLew, director of Sherwood.

The purpose is to provide a money shoot, a shortened round, the opportunity to introduce a new archer or 3-D shooter to target archery! This Mini-Tour is an OPEN event and we encourage you invite all your friends to shoot. Help us advertise these events and support each!

Some Shots from the SHOOT!

And the winners are...
