Dixie Bowmen Members Successful on Florida Hunt

by Luther Trower

We had traveled for thirteen plus hours from Disputanta, Virginia to Brahma Island, Florida. We are six members of the Dixie Bowmen Archery Club: Keith Johnson, Steve Keavy, Dan Walters, Marty Walls, J.B. Brown, and myself, Luther Trower. Brahma Island is in Lake Kissimmee, which is just east of Lake Wales and a good hour south of Orlando. Brahma Island is owned by the Lightsey Cattle Co. The Island has a good strong natural population of wild boar.

We were all shooting compound bows in the 60 pound range, except for myself. I had planned to get one hog with my compound and one with my recurve bow that had a 55 pound pull. This would later prove to be a real challenge that I would prefer not to repeat. We shot Thunderhead I25's Wasp's, and Laser Pro Mags. Archery gear in this kind of hunt takes a real beating. Your equipment needs to be in good shape and backup gear is a good idea.

We had three guides: Cary Lightsey, Snake and Moby.

The plan was to stalk the hogs in the morning and evenings when the hogs came out of the swamps to feed on acorns under the oaks. During the day, we would use a Black Mouth Curr dog to jump the hogs in the swamps and switch grass. The dog would eventually bay-up the hog and one shooter would move in for a shot, with the assistance of one of the guides. It was nice having a guide there that knew a lot more about hogs than I did. I knew nothing at all about wild boar. The guide would tell you when you were close enough to shoot, tell you where the hog was, tell you when to run, and when to watch out for diamond back rattle snakes. He would always tell me "hell of a shot, give'm another arrow." Well, by lunch the first day, we had five hogs. We got two more between lunch and dark. The second day we finished up by stalking two more hogs.

Altogether, we got nine hogs. Five hogs with the assistance of a dog or two and four hogs by stalking.

Standing: Marty Walls

These hogs weighed between 90 and 220 pounds. Their cutter teeth were extremely sharp. Much sharper than I had expected. Wild boar have a protective layer of cartilage like a shield that floats between the skin and ribs. It ranges between one and two inches thick. This shield will definitely slow your arrow down. In my case, I hit a hog at 20 yards right behind the shoulder in the heart-lungs area with my 55 pound recurve, only to watch in distress, my arrow bounce right off and flop to the ground. My next shot at this hog was about three inches closer to the shoulder, right on the edge of the shield, and went right into the lungs. That was only the third of . . . shots!

We killed six of the nine hogs with one shot right in the heart-lungs. The other three took multiple shots. A shot to the lungs-only, would not stop the hog. The shots we took ranged in distance from ten to thirty yards.

I would advise this kind of hunt to anyone who likes high intensity excitement, a challenge, a little danger, a test of shooting and hunting skills, and a lot of fun.

The following are some quotes from our guides:

"The next time you come back, leave that little stick bow at home. Just bring the one with the wheels on it." —Snake

"Hell of a shot. Give that man another arrow." —Moby

"Always run in pairs, cause rattlers only bite the third man in line." —Moby

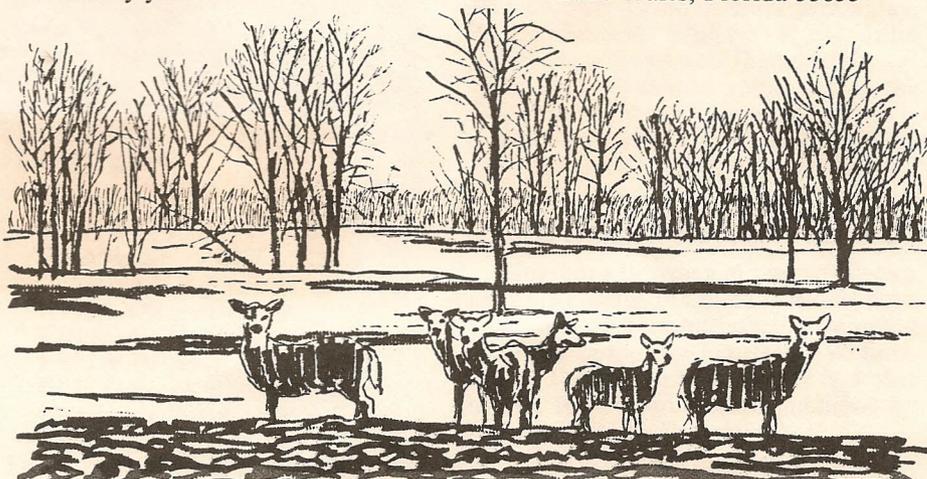

We highly recommend this hunt with the Lightsey Cattle Company. Cary Lightsey does kinda get this painful look on his face when you tell him you're a bowhunter.

Danger Lurks in OMB and Congress With a Raid on Wallop-Breaux Funds!

The Wallop-Breaux Trust Fund (formerly known as Dingle-Johnson and Pittman-Robertson Acts) supports federal aid programs to states for fish and wildlife restoration with matching grants for research, enhancement and improved fishing and hunting opportunities. The proposed OMB cap must be acted upon by Congress soon! Thus, let your congressman and senator know you want more bowhunting, bowfishing and archery opportunities funded by the excise taxes you pay on your equipment and say NO to diverting monies to the General Fund!

Good wildlife management must be based upon scientific investigations into the condition and numbers (age groups) of wildlife populations and ways to enhance their habitat provide a harvestable yield for the sportsman by various methods of taking fish and game.
